Image bank: Remote house in the west of Scotland (higher)

Topics
- Holidays, holiday destinations

Aims
- To use a ‘word cloud’ as a way of accessing a listening text
- To listen for specific information
- To write sentences about a listening text (pre- and post-listening)
- To write a story about a holiday based on a listening text and a photograph

Age group
- 14+

Level
- B2+

Time
- Approximately 40-60 minutes

Materials
1. Audio file
2. Image (Remote house in the west of Scotland)

Introduction
This activity is designed to encourage students to develop their higher-level critical-thinking skills to speak about images. Apart from listening skills, the focus in this lesson is on vocabulary and writing skills.

Procedure
1. Make a word cloud using the audioscript, or use the one below.
2. Show the word cloud to the students and explain that the bigger the word, the more often they'll hear it. Ask students to look at the word cloud and in particular at the bigger words. Ask students to work in pairs or small groups to try and guess what the recording will be about. After about 5 minutes, ask each pair for their ideas and write some of the key points on the board.

3. Now show students the photo. Ask them to work again in their pairs or groups to modify their ideas.

4. Ask students to choose at least ten words from the word cloud. They should use these words to construct at least four sentences that they think they might hear in the recording. Monitor and help with grammar and lexis issues.

5. Play the recording for students to listen and check.
   NOTE: They do not need to have written exactly the same sentences as in the recording – the important thing is that the idea is similar and that the sentences the students wrote are grammatically correct.

6. Ask students to work in pairs to write down two more pieces of information they heard, using words from the word cloud. Play the recording again to check.

7. Brainstorm the class's pieces of information and write them on the board. Ask students to work in their pairs or groups to arrange the information into the correct order and rewrite it
Ask students to choose a photo from the Holiday Time set (http://www.flickr.com/photos/eltpics/sets/72157626527253332/)

Tell them to imagine they are the photographers and to write a short monologue explaining:

- Where / when the photo was taken.
- What the holiday was like, in general.
- Why they took the photograph and what it was that caught their eye.
- If they like or dislike what is in the photograph and why.

Extension/homework: Once they have finished, they can create their own word cloud using their text.

This photo was taken during a family holiday we had on the coast, on the west coast of Scotland, just south of a town called Oban, which is about, oh I don't know, about two hours north of Glasgow, um, Scotland's biggest city, and it must be about probably about eight years ago now since I took it. Eight or nine.

We were staying in a self-catering cottage, a great wee house it was, with a lovely kitchen, and very comfortable... and we'd been spending time just, you know, relaxing and wandering around the beaches, visiting the local villages and pubs and things, and on this particular day we had taken a boat trip so there was myself, ehm, my husband and our two children, who were about ten and twelve at that time.

Most of the photos I took on that holiday were of us, that's me and my husband, and the children having a go at driving the boat and things, but I also took photos of the coastline, which is amazingly beautiful, and this house drew my attention, totally caught me, you know?, just for its remoteness, which quite appealed to me at the time.

Interviewer

It really does look totally alone, doesn't it? Very, you know, isolated or...or far away from everything.
Carol

Yes, but that's what I like about it, it's... it's, ah, very remote, but that's a good thing sometimes, isn't it? I mean, I wouldn't want to live there permanently but every now and again the remoteness is appealing. Don't you think?
Raymond returned from the west of Scotland, having spent a few days in Oban. He travelled by car and went on a coastal drive. Raymond and his family, including two children, had rented a self-catering house on the coastline. The house was quite remote, near the village of Kerrera. Raymond found the remoteness calming and relaxing. He and his family went on a boat trip, enjoying the sight of beautiful beaches and rugged cliffs. They also went on a visit to the small town of Tobermory. Raymond had never been so far away from home, and he felt a sense of freedom and independence. The holiday was very relaxing, and Raymond and his family took many photos to remember their trip. They certainly enjoyed their time in Scotland, and hope to return soon.
