

Inside lives

Script

Both of these two pictures have the same woman in them. She looks as though she may be about 60 years old, perhaps a bit less. In the first picture it looks as though she is at work because she is standing behind a desk and it has a cash register on it for taking money from customers. Everything in the room looks quite old, so perhaps it is an antique shop or an old clothes shop. There are lots of pictures on the wall behind her and coloured cloth and dolls. It looks quite jumbled and untidy. There are lots of small ornaments on the shelves. I'd like to pick some of them up and look at them more closely. At the top of the picture there is a half of a woman. Not a real woman, but the kind you see in a shop window with the clothes on for you to look at.

In the first picture, the woman looks quite serious, but still very friendly, a bit like she is a friendly aunt or grandmother. She dressed quite casually and has a scarf tied round her neck.

In the second picture the same woman is sitting at a table with two other people. The other people are younger than her and may be her children. The man looks a little like her and may be it's her son. She looks very happy and they are all smiling and it looks like the younger woman is telling a joke or a funny story. They have some cups and glasses in front of them and some snacks that look like biscuits. They look tasty and I'd like to try one. The room is much more organised in the second picture. There is a big picture of a landscape on the wall and a table with magazines under it and a nice white table cloth with a blue pattern. This might be the older woman's home. Yes I think this is her home and her son and daughter-in-law are visiting her.
