Dear Little Red,

I have finally learned to accept my body as it is, but for a long time, I 1 look at myself in the mirror. I tried every new medicine in the hope that it 2 help me, but nothing ever did.

Soon, I 3 eat anything without feeling a smell and taste of you, and the doctors thought that I 4 have a rare kind of "bulimia".

Luckily, your mum and friends were very understanding. They have helped me to see that you 5 expect everyone to conform to society's idea of perfection.

Now I 6 finally accept myself as I am. Although medicines 7..... offer all kinds of solutions to my problem I wonder if there really is such a thing as a "body" problem.

Your loving granny,

The Werewolf
